Foreword

We, the members of the Treasured Echoes Staff, are proud and happy to present to you a book that carries the memories of the 1962 Senior Class. We hope that you will enjoy it as much as we enjoyed assembling it for you.

As Editor-in-Chief of our beloved Treasured Echoes, I wish to thank our staff, advisors, faculty, and administration for the co-operation and enthusiasm they have shown toward the production of this yearbook.

Now as the class of 1962 bids its last fond farewell, it is my wish that this book will keep the memories of our class burning in your heart.

Luther Wharton
Editor-in-Chief

Dedication

To Our Parents:

We pledge our love, devotion, and sincere gratitude by dedicating to you this, the 1962 edition of the Treasured Echoes. It has been you who helped us to further develop into that which we hope to become; through long years of toil, it has been you who gave us the best you could offer. For this, we are and always will be deeply appreciative.

With pride and respect,

THE SENIOR CLASS

Farewell Seniors of the 1962 Class:

To live in this highly technological society is a great challenge and if we do not live without fear of the impending danger, of the Atomic Age, we cannot survive, you must prepare your intellectual careers with this challenge in mind.

High school is only one area of preparation for the future, so do not feel secure until you have pursued advance education in college or vocational schools. When you have chosen a profession or vocation, study diligently so you will succeed.

We hope you will enjoy brilliant careers and an abundant life of service to all mankind. We shall miss you, but we will be rewarded by the evidence of your success.

A Fond Farewell

Class Song

M.N.S.
( Tune: Danny Boy )

O.M.N.S., our hearts for you are longing,
From ages past until the present day;
And to your folds we'll always be belonging,
For here we wish that we could always stay.

Refrain:

We love you so for all you've ever taught us;
For five long years you've taught us how to grow;
And when we leave, we hope you will remember us,
For we are finished here and have to go.

We came each day to fill our minds with knowledge,
For you had lots of it to give away.
It was here we were prepared for college;
We wish to stay but must be on our way.

Carolyn Marshall

Class History

Four years have elapsed since we entered Mary N. Smith High School as beginners. These years have gone by so rapidly, it is difficult to realize that now we must pause to recall events which highlighted our life at M. N. S.

Let us turn back the hands of time to September 1957. Excitement, happiness, and nervousness were some of the feelings we shared as beginners. What fun we had getting to know each other and sharing in various activities! Imagine, both the Homecoming and May Day Queens came from our class! Sandra Wharton, happily accepted the crown of Miss Homecoming, while Jacqueline Anderson gracefully wore the crown of Miss May Day. As the year came to a close, we had become accustomed to the ways of high school life.

We greeted September 1958 as Freshmen. We were one year older, one year wiser, and one step higher. We again supplied the school with a May Day Queen: Carolyn Marshall, her eyes sparkling with joy, received the title of Miss May Day. During this year, some of us were among the charter members of the Crown and Scepter Honor Society; namely, Maxcine Selby, Mary Mallory, Geneva Cannon, Frances Justis, Jacqueline Anderson, Evelyn Wynn, Carolyn Marshall, and Justine Milbourne. The year progressed, and at its close, we were still moving towards our goal.

When the bells of 1959 tolled, we were there to answer the Sophomore call. During that year, we became the first class in the history of Mary N. Smith High School to ever give a Freshman-Sophomore Ball. Finally the school session was over and everyone was shouting with glee, because most of us had passed and were Juniors at last!

September 1960, we entered old M. N. S. with the title of sophisticated Juniors. We looked forward to a prosperous year, and so it was. We kept the Christmas spirit that year by presenting an elaborate assembly honoring our principal, Mrs. Gates; supervisor, Mrs. Carter; and visiting teacher, Mr. Clark. December of that year found Evelyn Wynn being crowned Miss Jasmine. Maxcine Selby used her creative abilities to become one of the winners in the National Essay Contest, and Carolyn Marshall, Maxcine Selby, and Jacqueline Anderson became semi-finalists in the National Merit Scholarship Test and were eligible to compete for scholarships the next year. Two of our biggest events that year were our Junior Play entitled "The House of Strangeness" and the Junior-Senior Prom at which we spent an enchanting "Evening in Paris. At the close of the year, Joseph Parker was awarded a certificate as the best-all-around athlete.

At last, 1961 . . . the glorious year, for we have earned the title of dignified Seniors. How proud and happy we are! The five years are almost consumed and what a difference they have made within our class. This was the year in which we worked diligently, planning our yearbook and preparing for that 'final march.'

These are the exciting, memorable events that have taken us through the last five years; how can we forget them?

Class Poem

We know that each tomorrow
Shall find us better than today.
For more wisdom and knowledge,
We will strive along our way.

We are not yet satisfied,
For there is a long road to success;
Our past has been good,
But our future shall be best.

Our hearts are lamps which
Will burn with a constant flame,
That shall some day light
The future scholars' "Hall of Fame."

Yes, M.N.S., it is with sadness
We say so long and good-bye;
Our thoughts and feeling for you
Will never, never die.

With the grace of God
To forever lead us on,
Dear M.N.S., we must say - -
So long.

Sandra Duncan

Class Prophecy

"I just can't believe all of us are here. Imagine, after all of these years the 1962 graduating class has come together once again.

One could not afford to miss the pleasures of this fabulous 1000-acre estate owned by Donald Bragg and his wife, Nancy Duffy, whom he recently married. Incidentally, the estate is a lovely villa located near Paris, France.

Seated on the patio are a few of the guests: Electrical engineers, John Parker, Norman James, Marshall Cropper, and Willie Randall. Their wives accompany them: the former Misses Shirley Mason, Eva Johnson, Patricia Fletcher, and Scotia Hatney, respectively.

On the golf course at the 18th hole are the famous golf instructors: Joseph Parker, Frances Justice, and Doris Allen. They are giving lessons to their old friends, Justine Milbourne, Geneva Cannon, Emma Jane White, and Carol Hickmond, who are now outstanding English instructors at Oxford University in England.

In the main ballroom, the MAGNIFIQUE Quatresiems, consisting of Elroy Savage, Jerlene Harmon, Evelyn Wynn, William Strand, Vera Trent, and Claudia Mears, supply the musical background for the showing of fashions designed by the renown model and fashion designer, Mary Mallory. The enchanting marionettes, Carolyn Marshall, Jeanette Giddins, Glorladine Ashby, Edith Bailey, Peggy Jubilee, and Vera Matthews, act as living mannequins.

Business industrialists, Cornelius Satchell, John White, William Garris, Severn Loftland, and Ronnie White confer while lunching in one of the private dining rooms.

Members of the President's cabinet, Roland Drummond, Allie White, Margaret Parker, Shirley Duffy, Sandra Duncan, Margaret Haley, Mary Press, Charlie Walker, Annie Bailey, and Estelle Hayes, debate the present-day situation with Montrue Floyd, Jean Bell Savage, Patricia Taylor, and Donzell Hinson, ambassadors to Russia, Switzerland, Denmark, and Ghana, respectively.

Reverend and Mrs. Luther Wharton, Mrs. Wharton being the former Miss Sally Ann Jones, discuss interdenominational church affairs with missionaries William Baines, Sara Rue, Delores McVall, Maurice Smith, and Carolyn Melvin in the library. Meanwhile, Maxcine Selby, Secretary of the United Nations, and her husband, Clarence Pettit, who is the administrative assistant to the President, reminisce with Margaret Strand, director of a school of stewardesses, and Jacqueline Anderson, who has a penthouse in Venice and is a world renowned criminal attorney.

Yes, the members of the Class of '62 has, after a decade, reunited, bringing with them the fame which they have attained during their years of separation.

Prophecized by Margaret Strand and Sara Rue

Wills

Sorrowfully leaving M. N. Smith High School:

Doris Allen wills to the incoming seniors the right to think about the senior bills before time.

Jacqueline Anderson bequeaths her high moral qualities and friendly personality to Sheila Carter and William Thomas Strand.

Gloriadine Ashby leaves her small feet to Doris Drummond, hoping by 1963 she will be wearing a smaller shoe.

William Baines leaves his ability to do good in English to his brother James Baines.

Annie Bailey wills her dancing ability to her sister, Magdelene Bailey, hoping by 1963 she will dance as well as she.

Geneva Cannon wills her dignified ways and personality to the incoming seniors.

Shirley Virginia Duffy wills her second seat in Mrs. Wharton's room to her sister, Madeline Duffy, hoping by 1965 she will use her time wisely and comprehend English much better than she.

Donald Bragg wills his personality to Mary Fletcher.

Nancy Lee Duffy leaves her becoming hair style to Annie Grimes.

Sandra Duncan wills her friendly personality to her brothers, Wayne and Robert Pettit, hoping they will continue to be friendly.

Patricia Fletcher wills to her brother five successful years in high school.

Marshall Cropper leaves his athletic ability to his baby brother, Prevone, and nephew, Dwight, hoping by the time they get in high school they will perform better than he.

Montroue Floyd wills whatever she has to will to the incoming seniors.

Jeanette Giddins wills her shortness to her brother, Eugene Giddins, hoping by the time he graduates he will be taller than she.

Wills Continued

Margaret Haley wills whatever she has to the incoming seniors.

Roland Drummond wills his football ability to Purnell Rue.

Jerlene Harmon wills her singing ability to her two sisters, Helen and Eunice, hoping that they will always keep M. N. Smith ringing with joyful music.

Scotia Hatney wills her ladylike ways to Doris Jubilee, hoping that by 1963 she will stop acting like a tomboy.

Carol Lee Hickmond wills her jolliness and friendliness to David Matthews and Clarence Core, hoping they will be as jolly and friendly in the future as they have been in the past.

William Garris wills his ability to play the saxophone to Marshall Custis.

Eva Johnson leaves her politeness to the incoming seniors.

Sally Jones wills her popularity with the boys and jiving ability to Oletha Downing and Rebecca Watson, hoping that by 1975 they will be popular with all boys of both levels.

Peggy Jubilee wills her personality and behavior to her sister, Doris Jubilee, hoping that by 1963 she will have a personality as sweet as hers.

Donzell Hinmon leaves his football suit to his brothers, Keith and Ronnie, hoping by 1970 they will share it equally.

Frances Justis wills her dressing ability to her cousin, Ann White.

Dorothy Lecato wills niceness to her cousins, Gladys and Melvin Tolliver.

Mary Mallory leaves her sewing ability and patience to her sister, Joan, and all who may become indignant when trying to be successful with needles and pins.

Carolyn Marshall wills her five years of felicitous study hours and jesting activity moments to her brother, Gregory, and all other incoming Freshmen.

Ronnie White leaves all he has to the incoming seniors.

Estella Hayes leaves her popularity to her cousins, Alphonzo Hayes and Lorenzo Pitts.

Wills Continued

Norman James leaves his hitting ability in baseball to Bobby White, hoping by 1963 he will hit like him.

Shirley Mason wills her petite stature and quietness to her cousin, Gloria Mason.

Vera Matthews wills her quiet ways to her sister, Hattie Matthews, and Lillie Parks.

Claudia Mears wills her dancing ability to Carolyn Hope and Marsha Savage.

Thomas Kellam wills whatever ability he has to his sister, Barbara.

Carolyn Melvin wills her French ability to Gloria Ann Hargis, hoping by 1965 she will be able to master French.

Justine Milbourne wills her hair style to Laura Holden and Shirley Harris.

Margaret Parker wills her quietness and co-operativeness to Lille Mae Finney, hoping that by 1963 she will be as quiet and co-operative.

Severn Loftland wills his size to Herman Strand, hoping he will be smaller by 1963.

Mary Press wills her politeness and friendliness to Jane Townsend, hoping that she will use these qualities wisely.

Sara Rue leaves her dimples to her sister, Arlene Cropper, and her cousin, Jacqueline White.

Jean Bell Savage wills her seat in English class to her sister, Betty Ann Savage.

James Mills wills his jiving ways to Edward Olds.

Maxcine Selby wills her scholastic ambition and pleasing personality to her brother, Gregory Selby, and her cousin, Yvonne Smith.

Margaret Strand leaves her cheerful smile and pleasing personality to Lillian Lankford, hoping that by 1970 she will treat people like human beings.

Patricia Taylor wills her seat in English class to her sister, Bernadette Taylor.

John Parker leaves his football ability to his brother, William Parker.

Joseph Parker wills his ability to play football to Edward Christopher and Howard Matthews, hoping that they will divide it equally and use it well.

Clarence Pettit wills the table he started in Agriculture four years ago to the incoming Freshmen, hoping they will finish it by 1970.

Vera Trent wills her personality and dignity to whosoever needs it.

Willie Randall leaves his athletic ability to Leroy Shields and Daniel Harmon, hoping they will use it wisely.

Cornelius Satchell wills his artistic ability to anyone having a desire to improve it and put it to the best of use.

Elroy Savage wills his friendliness and his ability to dance, play football, sing, and jive the girls to Harold Dickerson.

Delores Warrington wills her friendliness and dignity to Lillian Lankford, hoping that someday she will become more friendly and ladylike.

Maurice Smith leaves his "sinker pitch" in baseball to his brother, Alvin Smith.

William Strand leaves his guitar playing to Donald Dix.

Charlie Walker leaves his baseball ability to Fredrick Turner.

Sandra Wharton wills her nice ways to her brother, Keith Wharton, hoping that by 1964 he will stop acting so silly.

Luther Wharton leaves his acting, singing, working, and eating abilities to the incoming seniors.

John White wills his personality to William Crowson, hoping by 1965 he will have one as pleasant as his.

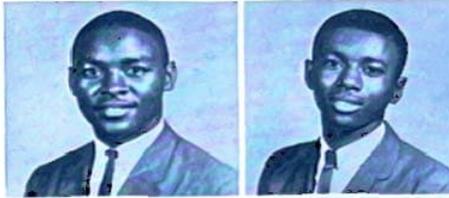

Allie White wills his ability to jive the girls to his dear cousins, William White, Bruce Bagwell, and Samuel White.

Evelyn Wynn wills her basketball yells to Betty Savage and Lille Finney, hoping that they will continue cheering, not playing.

Dearest Marshall,

For the past five years we have been in the same classes, but not until 1960 did I get to really know you.

There is one event in my life I shall never forget if I live to be one hundred and ninety-nine. That was our trip to Jamestown + Williamsburg, coming back on the ferry and the bus. (smile)

There could have been a lot of love in our lives, but I guess it was my fault, + there is no time now to make amends.

But sometime within the next ten years we will meet again, and maybe things will be different. (smile).

To you I wish the best of luck in anything you start out to achieve. All I ask is remember these last few lines:

"If A task is once begun,
Never leave it until it's done;
Be the labor, greater small,
Do it well or not at all."

Dear Marshall,

Though I have been acquainted with you for a period of five years, in my opinion, I have really come to know you within the last five months -- your personality, mood, temperaments, babyish ways... I can't say that I have ever come in contact with many other young men with whom I could be as comfortable, or maybe relaxed, would be a better word.

As you enter life's garden, remember: never allow either of two gates swinging on the same post to become aware of the other, for if neither is broadminded and optimistic (lucky for you I was), one will require the removal of the other, thus, marring the appearance of the entire scene.

I wish you much success in all your endeavors; and though our paths may never again cross, think of me as being

Always yours,
Jacqueline
